

Cultural Pass Changes

Starting October 1, 2012 the Portland Art Museum will charge each adult in your group $5 admission to enter the museum with a cultural pass. Patrons can check out a pass at participating LINCC libraries on their library cards. The pass is good for two adults (children 17 and younger are free) but instead of free admission patrons will be charged $5 per adult at the museum.

Although there is now a cost involved, that still means patrons can visit the Portland Art Museum for $10 off the regular admission price of $15 (a savings of approximately 66%). Also, this change means that cultural passes cost less for each LINCC library to purchase. The cost each library pays for an Art Museum pass is now $100 instead of $500. This is a substantial savings that your library can use to purchase other materials. The Portland Art Museum is a major cultural asset to our region and just one of six venues for which we have a cultural pass.

Read the full details about our cultural pass program.

Update: You will not be able to use the Art Museum cultural pass for entrance to the special Body Beautiful exhibit running October 6 - January 6.

Source URL (retrieved on 2012-11-22 12:48): <http://westlinnoregon.gov/library/cultural-pass-changes>